6.2 Airplay-to-Income - Convert Frequency Into Money

Elite private strategy - not for redistribution

WAR-ROOM NOTES - 6.2 Airplay-to-Income

THE RECEIPT CURRENCY: AIRPLAY IS THE ONLY VERIFIABLE DEMAND INDEPENDENTS HOLD

Streams are private; radio adds are public and verifiable. A music supervisor, a brand, a booking agent, or a label can check a radio add in 20 seconds - which makes it the only proof-of-demand an independent artist can hand over. The entire revenue thesis of this course is: build the verifiable demand (radio), then convert it across every lane. Artists who convert frequency into receipts are not competing on taste - they're competing on evidence.

THE SIX-LANE PRIORITY MATRIX (WHERE TO START)

Ranked by cash velocity for an independent artist: 1) tickets (fastest), 2) placements (highest per-unit), 3) streams/saves (signals), 4) merch, 5) sponsorship, 6) career deals. If you have a touring market, tickets are the first lane. If you have no touring market, placements are first: the placement package takes 90 minutes and the add-log proof is unique - most indie artists can't produce a verifiable spin log. The matrix is an operating priority, not a menu.

THE PLACEMENT PACKAGE AS A PRODUCT

A one-page, proof-first placement package (radio log + spin counts + 90-sec cut + stems + contact) is a piece of inventory a supervisor can act on. It's not a press kit; it's a licensing offer. The same package converts twice: once for the supervisor, once for the brand sponsor. Build it once. Deploy it every quarter. The 90-minute build cost is recovered by the first placement.

THE ATTRIBUTION LEDGER IS THE LTV ENGINE

The course's most important measurement promise is attributable net profit. Without the ledger, every dollar of income is unproven and every campaign's ROI is a guess. With it, you answer the only question that matters to the system: what did THIS add produce? The ledger is the proof that the funnel works - and the ammunition for the ascension pitch (Module 6.4) when the artist is ready to scale with you.
