2.2 Tour Pre-Roll - Manufacture Airplay Demand With Dates

Elite private strategy - not for redistribution

WAR-ROOM NOTES - 2.2 Tour Pre-Roll

THE SHOW IS A MARKETING OBJECT, NOT A PERFORMANCE

The amateur treats the show as an event. The operator treats it as a proof-manufacturing machine with four outputs: ticket receipts (Audience), crowd footage (Story), a market tie (Geography), and a deadline (Urgency). Go into every show knowing which four outputs you're building. If you can't produce all four, the date is not radio fuel - book the date anyway, but don't pitch it.

THE T-21 TIMELINE IS OPTIMAL, NOT ARBITRARY

- T-21 to T-14: PDs process local stories on a 2-week cycle. Announcing too early loses urgency; too late loses the chance to book the artist on a show block or interview.
- T-10 first send: your email lands after the announcement has circulated, so the PD sees a market story, not a pitch.
- T-7 second touch: escalate with a new asset (crowd video clip, artist-on-radio-adjacent content) - value, not a reminder.
- T-4 third touch: the final ask. After that, stop (per the Oath).
- Show night: the personal handshake. This is where the deep relationship is built (Module 5).

THE "DRAW THE CROWD" AGENT

Three ways to make a show a market event without a touring budget: (1) local press mini-blitz - 3 outlets will cover a local show for free; (2) artists' alliance - co-bill with a local act that already pulls crowds; (3) a "listener discount" posted to the station's community page the week of - it makes the station a partner in the event rather than a passive recipient of a pitch. All three are done in 3 hours and pay for themselves in story capital.

THE PRE-ROLL ASSET STANDARD

One asset, three versions: 60s landscape (email), 30s vertical (reels/stories), 15s bumper (DM attachments). Always with the date as the hero - not the song. Radio cares about the event; the song is the soundtrack.

THE ANTI-FALSE-MARKET CHECK

A date is only radio fuel if you can answer three questions: (1) What's the room? (2) How many people showed last time? (3) Which station's listeners would drive to it? Three "I don't knows" = don't pitch. Keep the date, kill the pitch.
